IT'S MASS MURDER

Huck Finnegan Tells Of Robot Bombs

By HUCK FINNEGAN
Boston American War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN SOUTHERN ENGLAND, July 1 (via Press Wireless)—This robot bombing is plain mass civilian murder.

But business in this little town goes on as usual despite the hurtling, death-dealing, pitiless bombs which flash into this section almost constantly.

When I arrived here from Northern Ireland it was like landing in another world.

In Ulster a fellow can plan on sleeping in a bed every night but that's all behind now and it seems like it never happened.

Here sleep is just something you get when you can.

My first night here, one of those fiendish planes landed less than 50 yards from our inn.

The blast shattered every window and sent glass flying in all directions. Everybody rushed down to the first floor. We huddled together in nervous little groups. The explosions kept up. Everytime one of the planes seemed like it was nearing our place, we hurried ourselves in a heap on the floor.

Mostly the guests were afraid of the flying glass. Finally fatigue overcame that fear. One by one members of the group dropped off into fitful sleep.

I talked with Capt. Lee Burke, a Worcester man who is staying in the inn. He said many people have been sleeping in cellars since the Germans opened the robot attack. One of his friends lost an eye, and another was struck on the head, both by flying glass.

These attacks are something entirely different from the usual bombing attacks. The 2200-pound bombs come flying over at all hours of the day and night instead of being limited to blitzes at night as they were in 1940. Jerry seems to take particular delight in releasing the lethal machines when workers are going to and from their homes.

Yet, no matter what the Nazis think up, the folks in this little town seem to keep doing the job they started out to do. I went down to a little cafe in the business center only hoping to find things operating. Except for the boarded-up windows and the dim light inside, everything seemed normal. The waitress' daughter was calmly going about her work, slicing sausage for sandwiches and serving customers.

A schoolteacher who dropped by for tea told a harrowing story. A friend of hers, another teacher, herded her pupils into a shelter when the robot bombs came over. She went outside to see if all the youngsters were in. She was killed as she stepped out the door.

The teacher told of another friend who buried her husband last Wednesday and was bombed out of her home the very next day.

There's no leniency people's nerves are affected by this most fiendish thing ever conceived by any man or nation.

It's now 1:50 (3 p. m.). Already robots have whistled overhead since morning. They land so close the vibrations shake the room. It's not pleasant to be alone during such a time.

The RAF Spitfires and Tempests are chasing the robots all over the sky. They shoot lots of them down, but can't get them all and the explosions continue steadily.

"In some ways it's worse than the blitz," one native told me.

"You could hide away during the night then and walk about during the day. Our fighters gave them a real battle. The Jerries were after our factories, railroads and other vital places during the blitz. They killed a lot of civilians, but at least they could control the bombs to some extent."

"These things just head for Eng-

British Repulse 7-Division Push

By WES GALLAGHER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, July 1 (AP)—The British Second Army stood firm on its Odon river salient in the seething battle for Caen today, having repulsed furious attacks by elements of seven Panzer divisions.

FRANCE—Black arrows locate British drives around Caen which threaten the city with encirclement. A heavy armored battle is raging near Equeux.

Thirty more German tanks were reduced to shattered hulks of steel, bringing the total destroyed by the British alone since D-Day to 142 and the total destroyed or disabled to 322.

If the German armored units which Field Marshal Rommel has thrown into the fight were up to strength, they would represent about 2000 tanks and self-propelled guns. Some of the units have been brought from Russia.

American forces, in local attacks in the central sector of the bridgehead, drove to within 2½ miles of St. Lo, reaching the villages of La Forge and Le Carillon.

Indications were seen here to Gain on Deadly Saipan

By REMBERT JAMES

(Representing the Combined American Press)

ABOARD JOINT EXPEDITIONARY FORCE FLAGSHIP OFF SAIPAN, July 1 (AP) (via radio)—The hardest battle of the Pacific war moved toward its climax today as American invaders of Saipan drove ahead in tropical heat to a new line on ridges above Garapan.

From their new position, the Americans expected to have a jumping off place for an attack against the remaining major enemy positions in the northern part of the island.

It was an advance across hills pale from limestone dust churned up by 17 days of shelling, bombing and fierce close-in fighting that has cost the Americans the largest casualties of any Pacific invasion.

The figures through June 28 were 1474 killed, 7400 wounded and 878 missing.

During the same period the losses among Japanese troops defending Saipan were obviously much greater. Americans buried 4951 Japanese dead. Doubtless many more enemy soldiers were killed but the Americans were unable to find their bodies because of the Japanese policy of removing and hiding the dead.

JAPS IN NUISANCE RAIDS

While American ground troops slowly tightened their stranglehold on the island, the Japanese gathered their scattered air strength in this area and staged a number of harassing night raids on American positions.

The Japanese made nine separate raids last night but dropped few bombs and hit nothing of value. At least one plane was shot down.

With the Japanese fleet out of

Nazi Defenses Fail To Halt Minsk Drive

LONDON, July 1 (AP)—Red army troops have carried their crushing offensive to the outer approaches of Minsk, where huge forces of infantry, tanks and cavalry were massing to regain the gateway city, Moscow dispatches said today.

Trapped Nazis Surrender

WITH U. S. FORCES IN CAP DE LA HAGUE, July 1 (INS)—German forces cornered in Cap de la Hague, at the northwestern tip of the Cherbourg peninsula, surrendered last night. This was reported by Robert Reuben, Reuter's staff correspondent.

American patrols now are engaged in mopping up stragglers in the wooded country near the shoreline. More than 2000 prisoners were taken.

Hitler Rules Florence Open City, Nazis Say

LONDON, July 1 (INS)—The German radio reported today Hitler has declared Florence, Italy, an open city so that "irreplaceable treasures" there may be preserved.

The enemy report came as Allied armies drove northward toward Florence.

The Russians, asserting that 183,930 of Hitler's eastern front soldiers had been killed or captured in the first week of the new drive, reported continued gains in the fighting that raged from the far northern Finnish front to the center of the Pripyat marshes.

In the north Gen. Bagration's forces began a drive for the Baltic republics of the Soviet Union with the capture of two points inside old Poland—Disna and Prozor. Disna is only 27 miles from Latvia and 54 from Lithuania.

NEW YORK, July 1 (AP)—Russian troops have surrounded Minsk and taken possession of the leading rail and road routes leading to Warsaw from the White Russian capital, the British radio said today in a broadcast recorded by NBC.

Eddy Gilmore, Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, said a successful defense of Minsk looked hopeless for the Germans.

The broadcast Moscow communiqué disclosed Soviet troops were fighting in the streets of Borisov, and units of the Red Army that have crossed the Berezina river were believed less than 30 miles from the capital city.

Other Red Army forces captured Slutsk, an important railroad far to the south and about 70 miles west of Bobruisk, and took Petrikov, extending the front to a point 30 miles west of Mzyr and 100 miles southeast of Minsk.

The communiqué announced the capture of Novoselki, on the railway 32 miles southeast of Minsk.

5th Routs German Tank Attack

By NOLAN NORGAAARD

ROME, July 1 (AP)—Fifth Army infantry beat off German tank counter-attacks in the outskirts of Cecina yesterday and continued the drive along the Italian west coast in the direction of Livorno and Pisa while the French gained another mile on the road to

In the Adriatic sector the enemy has withdrawn from the Chienti river and the Eighth Army has crossed the stream in several places. The Germans were falling back to the Musone river, only 10 miles south of the big port city of Ancona.

Around Cecina, where the enemy had broken contact previously and started to flee, close pursuit by the Fifth Army caused the Germans to attempt a counterattack. This was repulsed and the doughboys moved into the southern outskirts of the town, while others pushed across the Cecina river, some three miles northeast of the town, and drove on northward.

By late afternoon the Americans were in contact with the Nazis on the south bank of the river on the coast, meeting mortar and small arms fire. The port of Livorno was 17 miles ahead.

Nazis Makin France Puppet

MADRID, July 1 (AP)—Diplomatic reports reach Madrid today indicated the Germans may wipe out the last tinge of Vichy independence in a week, assume all civil functions themselves and turn Franco to a full-fledged puppet.

Available informal suggested the Vichy government already was in process of liquidation. Reports here said the ministries of the interior, justice, propaganda, probably would be handed over bodily to the Nazis and Vichy courts would cease functioning, leaving all cases German military courts.

The propaganda ministry may already be fully German hands. The Vichy radio aired its usual news broadcasts today morning without explanation but came on the air later with a revamped program paralleling German domestic programs.

Police Know McGrath Killer

The brutal killer of little Frances McGrath of Dorchester is known to police and may be arrested today. For the last 12 hours he has been under constant surveillance by state detectives, who now await only the word from Dist. Atty. Edmund R. Dewing to make the arrest and also take into custody three other men who have guilty knowledge of the slaying.

Refusing all comment on the unusual procedure, authorities stated simply that none of the men have had the slightest chance to get away since yesterday and that they would have been seized had they made the attempt.

Asked point blank by reporters if the actual killer's identity is known, Police Chief Michael Stewart of Scituate declared without qualification:

"We know who the killer is. It can't be told yet why the delay in making an arrest was necessary. But you can be sure that it was important to the case."

DELAYED BY DEWING

State detectives were ready to seize all the men yesterday, but a last minute order by Dewing delayed the arrests. Since that time, Dewing's assistant, John Wheatley, has accompanied detectives during their guard-watch on the quartet.

Three of the men are residents in the area where the Dorchester youngster was spirited away as she left a Scituate bowling alley. The fourth is a summer visitor.

It was learned today that the four men all have frequented the bowling alley where the child was last seen and that one of them was driving an automobile at Scituate Harbor on the night of the girl's disappearance, although he does not, himself, own a machine.

STARTLING THEORY

It was said that he returned the motor car Sunday morning.

At the same time Wheatley disclosed that state police have adopted a startling new theory of the kidnapping and killing of the small daughter of ex-City Councilor John McGrath of Dorchester. They now believe that the child was left for dead in the lonely Norwell woodland within a few hours after she was kidnapped.

Part of this theory is based on the fact that a chemical analysis of her organs revealed that food in her stomach was precisely the same as she ate at her home the evening she vanished.

Wheatley frankly declared that medical evidence in the case is in disagreement with the theory of state detectives.

One of the most puzzling angles in the case has been how the little girl could be held captive for several days.

Thousands Jam Rail, Bus Lines

Despite the government plea for all patriotic Americans to stay at home over the holiday, bus terminals, railroad stations, airlines and highways were jammed today with thousands of celebrators.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of defense transportation in Washington, warned today that pleasure travelers might run into unpleasant experiences over the holidays.

"You will very likely be compelled to stand for hours in crowded cars, be unable to find eating facilities, or you may even be evicted from the space assigned and purchased if your space is required for casualties," Johnson said.

Nevertheless, the crowds took a chance.

Nelson K. Brown, assistant district manager of the ODT in Boston, said vacationers should be prepared to stay over an extra day or two in case of any sudden demands for moving military or wounded personnel.

"Such an emergency," he said, "is unpredictable at any time."

The Boston & Maine Railroad was pressed hardest of all, with accommodations of sleeping cars and parlor cars on the "Mountaineer" sold out now until after the Fourth.

Uprising Grows In Copenhagen

STOCKHOLM, July 1 (AP)—The Free Danish Press Service reported today German troops took possession of the Copenhagen Town Hall, National Bank, Central Station and other official buildings as a general strike continued.

Yesterday travelers arriving in Sweden declared Danes and Germans were fighting in the streets of Copenhagen with rifles and machine guns. They said thousands of Danes were leaving the city.

The Danish radio left the air at 8:40 p. m.

By late Friday night, 386 wounded Danes had been hospitalized after street fighting between patriots and German troops, the news agency said.

German troops stationed throughout Sjælland were said to have been ordered to the capital city to put down an "insurrection."

One report said German planes machine-gunned demonstrators, the agency added. Ferry and plane service between Sweden and Denmark still was closed down today.

Mother of Six Dying of Wounds

The condition of Mrs. Alice D. Francisco, 36, Cambridge mother of six children, today was reported as "poor" at Cambridge City Hospital, where doctors said she was unable to remove two bullets from her chest.

Meanwhile, police widened the search for her husband, Frank Di Francisco, 46, a war worker, who vanished after a quarrel and the shooting in the family home in Market st., Cambridge.

Doctors said the victim had been given several blood transfusions and placed in an oxygen tent.

Several times she spoke to police investigators at her bedside but no attempt was made to obtain a full statement of what happened.

Her daughter, Anna, 16, however, told police that she and the other children were in bed when they heard their parents arguing. She said the cause of the quarrel was their mother's refusal to join her husband in seeking the release from Westboro State Hospital of one of their children by a previous marriage.

Cheering Crowds Out to See Dewey

By LEO W. O'BRIEN

EN ROUTE TO ALBANY, With Gov. Dewey, July 1 (INS)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential candidate, returned triumphantly to his home state today, amid increasing signs that his drive for complete party unity will include a tangible offer of political amnesty to Wendell L. Willkie, 1940 G. O. P. standard bearer.

CHAIRMAN—Elected chairman of the Republican National Committee, Herbert Brownell, Jr., New York lawyer, today started planning the campaign of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, G. O. P. presidential candidate with whom he has been associated for 14 years.

At several stops along the 1000-mile route from Chicago to Albany, Gov. Dewey was forced to step to the rear platform of his car in response to cheers from well-wishers, many of whom pressed forward for handshakes and autographs.

Crowds were on hand at both South Bend and Elkhart, Ind. At Toledo, O., despite the lateness of the hour, hundreds of persons turned out.

The Republican presidential nominee had retired for the night when his train stopped at Cleveland and he was not yet up when it stopped at Buffalo, where state chairman Edwin F. Jaekle, one of the three New York leaders who helped bring about Gov. Dewey's nomination on the first ballot, left the train for his home.

At Albany, from where Gov. Dewey flew Wednesday to accept the nomination, the Republicans arranged a mammoth welcome home demonstration, scheduled to start at 11:24 a. m.

The Republican candidate spent many hours last night and early today discussing campaign plans with Herbert Brownell, Jr., new Republican national chairman; Jaekle, who will direct the drive to place New York's 47 electoral votes in the Dewey column, and National Committeeman J. Russell Sprague, who would have been national chairman had he desired the job.

A remark by Brownell during a press conference conducted by Gov. Dewey gave the hint that definite peace overtures to Willkie and his followers are in prospect.

Noxon's Trial Resumes Monday

PITTSFIELD, July 1—The trial of John F. Noxon, Jr., charged with murdering his baby son, began its final week-end recess today after an extraordinary night session in which an intent jury watched flickering home made movies of the little victim.

For 20 minutes, in a dimmed and hushed courtroom, the movies of little Lawrence were flashed on special screen. They showed the baby eating, laughing and at play and were taken by the defendant's only other child, John, 3d, 16, who led his film "Larry's Day."

The picture, introduced by the defense and admitted by Judge William E. Pinanski, purports to show that the infant had the use of his arms and legs and was strong enough to grasp an electric light cord.

It is this that the defense says was the reason for his election—death, and not by pre-planning of the defendant, as state charges.

In the trial resuming Monday, No. 4 Fourth of July holiday, it expected John Noxon would witness his fate by Wednesday or Thursday.

Great War Spectacle Set For INVASION SHOW

Tanks, flame-throwers were on the line and several thousands of Uncle Sam's toughest fighters had final instructions today for the big INVASION BOND SHOW and nothing save the weather can prevent a war spectacle July 4 such as Boston never has seen.

What war and invasion really looks like will be brought home to thousands and thousands of spectators who today scrambled for last minute reservations at vantage points along the Charles River Basin.

With usual foresight, the Boston retail merchants' bond committee have made alternate plans for the show just in case bad weather intervenes.

Long distance forecasting by the weather bureau indicates that the show will go off on schedule—under warm, fair skies—and it was on this prediction that Col. Vincent C. Breen, D. S. C. today issued his orders to 1000 members of the Massachusetts State Guard, 26th Infantry. The record-breaking detail will police a wide area on both sides of the Charles river.

But just in case it should rain, the INVASION BOND SHOW will be postponed until 2 p. m., Saturday, July 8.

The weekly forecast for a five-day period announced by the local weather bureau stated that showers might occur late Tuesday or Wednesday, but it was explained that showers during the summer are extremely doubtful elements and that chances for fair weather were good.

The committee said there will be radio announcements during the early part of Tuesday, if it is decided to postpone this event.

This is the last day in which to obtain tickets at the department and specialty stores of the Boston Retail Trade Board, so all those who want to see the INVASION BOND SHOW must get busy before the closing hour. Stores were opened today, the only Saturday of the summer, especially to accommodate the public who wish to buy bonds and see the great air and water spectacle.

A special war bond booth will be erected at the Dartmouth st. entrance to the reserved section of the Esplanade, where bonds may be purchased any time on Tuesday prior to the show. Under this plan tickets will be issued to all who care to make applications for a war bond and deposit a check or money in payment. At this booth also tickets may be obtained by all persons who can show a war bond purchased at a bank or receipt for such a purchase.

Sullivan Says He'll Be Mayor Monday

With Councillor Michael A. Sullivan lolling contentedly on seashore sands, the Cambridge mayoralty controversy offered no problems today to Mayor John H. Corcoran.

The latter was taking no chances, however, and just to make sure that the councillor from Kerry Corner sticks to his swimming, a couple of Cambridge stalwarts remained on duty at City Hall.

Sullivan left the field to the mayor with the announcement that he was all worn out with holding down the mayor's job for three days and really was entitled to some relaxation at the beach. He pointed out that Saturday was a half-holiday anyway and he couldn't hope to accomplish much even if he showed up.

But he promised faithfully to return to City Hall first thing Monday morning and challenge the occupancy of Mayor Corcoran.

This promise, he declared, still stands even though two police officers are on duty with instructions to escort him gently but firmly from the building if he reappears.

On duty for that very thing is Sgt. Charles Warnock, backed up if need be by Capt. Robert J. Douglas, Jr.

Censor Probers to Hear Miss Kellems

By RAYMOND WILCOVE

WASHINGTON, July 1 (INS)—Sen. Clyde M. Reed (R.) of Kansas indicated today that Miss Vivien Kellems, anti-New Deal Connecticut manufacturer, will be a star witness in the investigation of censorship leaks now being conducted by a Senate committee.

Simultaneously, Reed, a member of the subcommittee on post-offices and post roads which is making the probe, denied that Miss Kellems was being investigated.

Rep. Coffee (D.) of Washington was reported in Seattle several days ago as having stated that Miss Kellems "is being investigated in the proper manner" and that he was co-operating.

READ HER LETTERS
Coffee has been attacked by Miss Kellems for reading in the House excerpts from letters she wrote Count Frederick von Zedlitz, a German, in Argentina.

"The Senate post office subcommittee is not investigating Miss Kellems," declared Reed. "It is investigating an appalling leak in the censorship. Miss Kellems' correspondence was only a starting point. Nothing serious has been found in any of her correspondence. Cong. Coffee is not co-operating with the committee in its investigation."

Simultaneously, it was learned that Rep. McKellar (D) of Tennessee, committee chairman, invited Coffee to appear before the senatorial group, but he declined.

ASKED TO TESTIFY

The committee has decided not to subpoena the Washington Congressman.

The date for Miss Kellems' appearance before the committee has not yet been decided.

"She asked for an opportunity to testify," Reed stated, "and she will be given an opportunity to do so when we reach the proper place in the investigation."

Bay State Flier Tells Of Crash in Canyon

By STAFF SGT. PAUL HINES, JR.
(Former Record-American Reporter)

GRAND CANYON, Arizona, July 1—A Lawrence flier's own story of 10 days in the dangerous depths of the Grand Canyon after parachuting to safety when their B-24 Liberator bomber went out of control was revealed today.

RESCUER—John A. Gillis, bsn m. 2-c, of Randolph is shown aboard the Coast Guard rescue cutter on which he served during the invasion of France. He helped rescue more than 750 Allied invaders in the English Channel. Coast Guard Photo

He is Flight Officer Maurice J. Cruickshank Jr., 23, Lowell st. Lawrence, who with his two companions, was guided to the rim of the canyon by a rescue party.

Cruickshank's companions were 2 Lt. Charles Goldblum of Pittsburgh and Col. Roy W. Embanks of Kalspell, Mont. They were on a routine flying mission at the time of the mishap.

ORDERED TO JUMP

Heavily bearded and seared by the blistering sun, Cruickshank sipped a cold drink as he told his story.

"I was sitting in the bomber's nose when the plane began to vibrate. Knowing something was wrong, I strapped on my parachute. A few seconds later the co-pilot flashed the order to jump. Making my way across the catwalk to the bomb bay where Goldblum and Embanks were standing, I jumped.

"When a few feet from the ground, I observed that I was going to land on a slanting cliff. As I hit the ground I banged my right foot severely against the cliff. My ankle pained. I tried to sleep, but had difficulty because of the pain and the position in which I lay.

"When daylight came I fashioned a crutch from a stick and looked around to find my companions. Half an hour later I heard Goldie calling from another cliff.

SIGHT PLANE

"That afternoon we discovered a creek and drank freely from it. We also found a boat den on the side of the mountain where we slept.

"The following morning Goldie and I descended to the Colorado river and considered making a raft and shooting the rapids to Boulder Dam but the river was so swollen we decided against it.

"While at the river's edge we spotted Embanks about 100 yards above us and climbed up to him.

"On Friday we sighted the plane which was searching for us, but we couldn't make contact. That night we remained near the river. The following morning we noticed some berries. Each of us ate half a dozen of them, our first food in four days.

"On Saturday night we slept in the parachutes. Fliers from Kingman Army airfield sighted us the following morning and dropped blankets and K-rations."

Official observance of the day by the city will include a military parade, patriotic exercises, band concerts, sports events and neighborhood festivities in all sections of Boston.

The night-before bonfire signalled a return to the days before Pearl Harbor, since such displays had been banned for two years under dimout regulations.

Bond Buying Spurt Forecast

Despite the coming holiday and long weekend, the War Finance Committee today predicted a real spurt in war bond sales during the final week of the Fifth War Loan drive to reach a Bay State quota of $828,000,000.

This goal now is 76.3 per cent subscribed, but there can be no lag in buying—especially among purchasers of E bonds—during the stretch drive.

Sales of the popular E bonds, those up to $100 denomination, have reached a total of $36,500,000 here, or about 33 per cent of quota.

Next scheduled big event in the war bond drive is the big INVASION SHOW to be produced by all the armed services in co-operation with Boston's Retail Trade Board. The INVASION SHOW will be held on the Charles River Basin the afternoon of July 4, and admission is by war bond only.

Meanwhile "Direct Hit," the all services show plays in Quincy tonight.

TOMORROW'S PROMISE...

War has brought a new appreciation of old values.

The railroads, for example. They are indispensable. Never have they meant so much to so many people.

But we in the railroad industry are not satisfied merely to be doing a good emergency job.

This war has made us realize, more than ever, the tremendous force that is under our direction—its mighty hauling power; its flexibility; its absolute indispensability to our community life, to our country, to our allies.

When the world again turns to peaceful pursuits, America's railroads will provide a post-war transportation service finer than any you have ever experienced.

For the railroads have clearly demonstrated their ability to perform and to progress. They have transported millions of additional tons of freight with no appreciable increase in rolling stock; carried millions of fighting men with but little inconvenience to essential civilian travel.

The war is still to be won, and the ROCK ISLAND is resolved to see it through. But we envision a post-war era of rail transportation that will be as gratifying as the performance of the railroads in war-time.

Springfield Soldier Takes British Bride

By HUCK FINNEGAN

EIGHTH AIR FORCE, England—His name was McSweeney, Pvt. Bill McSweeney. He was blond and 27 and had an upper front tooth missing. He was sweeping the floor of the visiting officers' quarters and griping about his troubles.

"Just my luck," he boomed, exhorting through the AWOL denture, "and we just married and we don't see each other."

The "her" he referred to was his 26-year-old British bride, a girl named Ruth Bassett whom he had wooed for 16 months before sealing the union.

McSweeney is a Springfield boy, who lived with his mother (Mrs. Jennie Coffey) at 99 Hall st. until Jan. 15, 1940. Then he joined the Army. He has been in England since September of '42.

ONE RAY OF HOPE

"It's such a tough job getting married," he went on, knocking the few pieces of furniture hither and yon. "They make you wait 60 days, then you have to get the C. O.'s (Commanding Officer's) permission, then a written statement from the girl saying she's willing. Wish I could be transferred back where she lives."

McSweeney rearranged the furniture as his indigo mood disappeared.

"She's a darling," he reflected. "I used to go swimming with her."

Cpl. Roland A. Lambert
Manchester

They call her town the "Coney Island of England." It sure is pretty."

Was he going to settle in England after the war, in this "Coney Island" he loved? "No siree," he replied. "I'm going to take her back to the States." To Springfield to pick up his old job in Smith and Wesson's Firearms?

"No, I'm going to stay in the Army. This ain't a bad racket." Sgt. Paul S. Gazda, 26, of 65 Davis st., Holyoke, left a new bride (Helen Bolko) behind when he was called into service early in '42 but takes the cheerful attitude that he "can't afford to get homesick."

"I've met plenty of fellows from Springfield and Holyoke over here," he said. "In fact, PFC Stanley Wilkos best man at my wedding, visits me frequently."

Gazda, former tube operator for the U. S. Rubber, Chicopee Falls, has bounced from 144 pounds to 185 on Uncle Sam's cooking, "but I'll take my wife's any day." Gazda is a mechanic.

Cpl. Theodore A. Swann, 27 and graying, of 1 Goodwin st., New Haven, Ct., likes his job as air field controller (radio), likes the Army atmosphere and "everything about London except the lorry (cab) drivers. They're on the clip." Swann is the father of two girls, Shirley, 15, and Marion, 13, who live with their mother at 764 Quinipiac ave., New Haven. He

His father, Alphonse, lives at halfback on the varsity eleven, 412 Central st., Manchester. He has a brother, Marcel, who is in the Army in California. "Let Dad know I'm in the pink," he says, been reported missing for three months. Rudy's job here is radio.

Sgt. John Hibbard, 28, of 14 Sanderson ave., Northampton, misses his wife (the former Barbara Matthews), but the fact that Rudy just completed his second year at Providence College, played ward, 23, with the combat MP's in London, dissipates that nostalgic feeling.

NEW BRITAIN STAR

Sgt. John Smigrodski, 24, of 17 Park drive, New Britain, Ct., played halfback for Coach Chick Shea in '38 and '39 and says the current lieutenant commander in the Coast Guard "is the best coach in the business." John is a mechanic on the "Mission Belle."

He's a strapping six-footer who looks like All-America timber. "Let the folks (Mr. and Mrs. John) know I never felt better." Sgt. Thomas Costello, 25, of 273 West Ivy st., New Haven, is a member of the Tech Supply Command. "I keep 'em flying," he smiles. He used to be a production planner for Winchester Repeating Arms. Brother John, 23, is on a Navy torpedo boat in the So. Pacific.

So that the parents of these boys will know they're getting along famously in this foreign land, this is to apprise them that all the youngsters were found having a snack in the Red Cross Aero Club. They behave.

MacArthur Needs More Everything

By WALTER NAUGHTON

Special to Boston Evening American

LOS ANGELES, July 1—Gen. MacArthur has made vastly greater speed in pushing toward Japan in the past six months because he has had more men, planes, guns and ships.

But in Gen. MacArthur's own words:

"I need more of all those, and the sooner I get them, the sooner we can release the starving prisoners of Bataan."

This direct statement from the general, made only two weeks ago in his headquarters, was brought here today by Warren H. Atherton, joint commander of the American Legion.

G. I. JOE IS SWELL. Atherton has returned from a 30,000-mile air tour, under Army supervision, of all major South Pacific battlefields.

He and his party were under Jap shellfire in several places.

He made jungle patrol trips in Jap territory with doughboys, lived with them and watched them fight and die. Of the fighting men, Atherton today, in his first statement on his long tour of observation, said:

"G. I. Joe out there is swell, like American fighting men always are. He knows he is the better man and that the Japs can't stop him, and he expects to be in the Philippines and in control by the first of the year."

Morale is high, malaria and other diseases are practically whipped, our Army and Navy nurses and other WACs are doing a wonderful job and all our forces now move swiftly to "give the sneaky Jap military machine the final and forceful licking it deserves and will get," the Legion chief said.

WAR FAR FROM OVER

In addition to Gen. MacArthur, Atherton also had conferences with Admirals Nimitz and Halsey.

"All these great commanding officers don't think the war is about over, as some of the folks on the home front seem to think," Atherton warned. "I join them in this opinion after my first hand observations."

"Health of our men in the Pacific is higher than the average health of citizens at home," he concluded.

Nye's Margin Stands at 934

FARGO, N. D., July 1 (INS)—U. S. Sen. Gerald P. Nye apparently has won Republican senatorial renomination, returns from the primary indicated today.

After a see-saw battle that still may be decided by soldiers' absentee ballots, Nye had a margin of 341 votes over Lynn U. Stambaugh. The soldier vote in North Dakota was estimated at more than 10,000.

Returns from 2212 of 2251 precincts gave Nye 38,046 votes, Stambaugh 37,112 and Rep. Ushee L. Burdick 34,891. County authorities have until July 17 to certify returns including absentee ballots.

Blame Fireplace For Maine Blaze

WELLS, Me., July 1—A fireplace blaze was blamed today for a fire which swept three cottages in the Drakes Island section, where a Greater Boston woman and her baby escaped by leaping from an upper window. Damage to the three cottages was estimated at $13,000.

Mrs. Dora Saxe of Garland rd., Newton, Mass., first tossed her son, James, 3 months, onto soft sand outside. Then she jumped herself. They were not seriously hurt although treated by a Kennebunk physician.

Holiday Deaths Forecast at 1000

By The Associated Press
As pleasure-seeking holiday vacationers headed today for beach and mountain resorts the National Safety Council sounded a somber note, estimating that 1000 persons would meet death in accidents over the long Fourth of July week-end.

Unless the public makes a united effort to cut the toll, the council said, 300 persons will die in traffic mishaps and 700 from burnings, falls, drownings, over-exposure and over-exertion.

Disappointed WASP Trainees to Fly Home

SWEETWATER, Tex. (AP)—Forty-two girls who came here at their own expense to take women's air service pilot training, unaware that the program had been discontinued, are being fed and lodged, temporarily, at Avenger Field, here, and will be flown to their homes by the Army Air Forces.

Telegrams from the Army notifying them that the training program had been discontinued, except for those in training at the time of the announcement, failed to reach them, it was believed.

Gold Service Bar Authorized by Army

WASHINGTON, July 1 (AP)—A service bar was authorized for Army men to indicate each six-month period of service overseas. A similar decoration was used in World War 1.

The bar, to be worn on the left sleeve, is a four-inch rectangle of cloth with gold-colored edging worn just above the cuff. Service for the award will be computed from the date of departure from the continental United States to the date of return, during the period from Dec. 7, 1941, to a date six months after termination of the war.

Wave of Holdups Followed Dry Era

The political considerations governing the appointment of a Boston police commissioner and the sequel in impaired morale and efficiency that led to a wave of crime are disclosed in this seventh article of a series on how the department became the football of Beacon Hill.

By BARRINGTON WELLES

Another behind-the-scenes battle was necessary before former Gov. James M. Curley was able to push through the appointment of Eugene M. McSweeney as Boston's police commissioner after he had gained the resignation of Joseph J. Leonard.

The governor's council, divided on party lines, refused to vote for suspension of rules to permit McSweeney's immediate confirmation, whereupon the governor recalled the council for another session later in the day and threatened daily sessions unless his appointment was approved.

Former Republican Councilor J. Arthur Baker, of Pittsfield, then reconsidered his vote and McSweeney's confirmation was obtained by a five to four ballot.

APPOINTED JUDGE

Baker later was appointed a superior court judge. McSweeney, a former newspaper man and at one time Boston's fire commissioner and a member of the city's sinking fund commission, drew immediate fire from the Republican Club of Massachusetts, whose president at that time was the present attorney general, Robert T. Bushnell.

A formal statement from the officers and executive committee charged the council vote was a form of approving the payment of political debts by the governor.

The statement criticized the council for "failing to exercise the opportunity to improve the morale of the Boston police department by ridding it of politics."

CAREER MEN NEEDED
"It is essential to the public interest to appoint and retain men whose qualifications and experience have caused them to be characterized as career men," the statement continued. "To appoint men obviously lacking qualifications applies the axe to the basis of our democracy."

Truer words never were spoken, but these same words were indicative also of who at the moment was kicking the political football the police department had become.

On the surface McSweeney's administration of the department went along an even course, but in less than a year after his appointment, control of the gambling racket in Boston was completely in the hands of one syndicate.

This group had learned that murder no longer paid as far as they were concerned, and the records of the time show that the percentage of murders in that year was less than in any of the previous 15 years.

FIRST TROUBLE
But it was a different story insofar as political contacts were concerned.

More than a dozen new police captains were made that year, and anyone who hasn't heard how some of those captains reached that high rank is unfamiliar with the close tie-up of political manipulation with the police department.

McSweeney, long a close friend of Curley, first began to have trouble with the former governor in April, 1936.

Former police officers, who went on strike in 1919, were becoming impatient and pressing the Governor to make good his promise to a certain group—all successful in civilian life—to reappoint them to the department in order to clear their records of the stigma of the strike.

The governor had promised he would reappoint any person whose record since the strike was not otherwise tainted.

But the break came when Comm. McSweeney, attending an 8 a. m. secret conference with leading political figures in the office of the then Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield, was swayed by them to promise that he would not consent to the reappointment of any striking officers.

Curley bided his time, but made no secret of the fact that he was finished with McSweeney.

Meanwhile the powerful crime syndicate had lost its control over a group of its members who roamed the streets, terrorizing the city with daring holdups.

Even the most notorious strong-arm men fell prey to the group of highwaymen, who were desperate for funds now that the lush days of the prohibition era had ended and they were no longer able to patronize expensive night clubs and riding around in expensive cars.

Killers were held up and robbed of cash and diamonds. Gambling headquarters of the syndicate in the South End, West End and downtown Boston were stuck up boldly in daylight and the victims robbed and stripped of their clothing.

Headlines blazed through the spring and summer, and McSweeney's drive against crime faltered as the daring holdup men robbed a gambling room in Broadway, another in the South End and still another in Bowdoin sq. Throughout the several months of this reign of terror, the principals never were arrested, escaping after each daring robbery to plan and stage another.

In November, as his term drew to a close, the governor moved against McSweeney and obtained a six to three vote to oust him.

Joseph F. Timilty, a special agent in the Department of Internal Revenue in Boston, was Curley's choice for a successor to McSweeney as police commissioner.

But his failure as quarterback in the police department football game did not keep McSweeney long on the inactive list.

Curley was succeeded in office by Gov. Charles F. Hurley, and a few months later McSweeney was appointed a member of the Massachusetts Development and Industrial Commission.

The following December, after Col. Paul M. Kirk had been elevated to the Superior Court bench, one of Boston's most astute politicians induced Gov. Hurley to appoint McSweeney.

(In tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser the eighth installment of this series discusses the administration of Joseph F. Timilty.

Senator Byrd's Timely Revelations

IF THE SHREWED and sagacious Horace Greeley were living today, he probably wouldn't say: "Go West, young man—go West."

With the revelations of Senator Harry F. Byrd's Congressional committee before him, Mr. Greeley would be more apt to say: "Stay in Washington, my lad. The West was never like this."

Senator Byrd's investigators have found that:—

A non-citizen editor earning $1930 a year was hired by the Office of War Information at a $1270 increase. Within nine months his salary was boosted another $1400—a total gain of $2670.

A $50-a-week reporter went into the OWI at $3800 a year and within seven months was earning $4600 a year.

An alien from Russia, hired as a Government film editor at $5600 a year, enjoyed a salary increase of $1800 in nine months.

A lawyer whose salary for the previous four years had been a scant $1800 was given a boost of $1210 to join the legal staff of the OWI.

A young man who received only $1260 in increases over a period of several years with the National Youth Administration received raises totaling $3500 in only 12 months with the Farm Security Administration and the WMC.

Another young man was hired by the Government in 1935 as a messenger at $900 a year. In the next seven years he advanced to only $2600. But in 1942 he had the good fortune to get into one of Uncle Sam's numerous war agencies. His earnings immediately rose to $3200. And they have since soared to $6500 A YEAR.

Americans outside of Washington are going to find it hard to reconcile these salary boosts with the Government's anti-inflation and wage stabilization pledges.

Americans in the armed forces—especially those risking their lives on the battlefield for as little as two dollars a day—will find the reconciling particularly hard.

Friend of the Veterans

JOHN SAWTELLE, only Democratic member of the Massachusetts Governor's Council, has given his constituents an interesting resume of his work on Beacon Hill.

In this account of his stewardship, he mentions his fight for the discharged service man, but neglects to give it the broad treatment it deserves.

Mr. Sawtelle's expose of the neglect of the home-coming war veterans was his most beneficial service.

During the long months of delay and procrastination in Washington, he strove unceasingly to direct public attention to the plight of the GI Joes who had been shunted out of the military forces with little or no money to rehabilitate themselves and, in some instances, with hardly enough to buy food.

All his life Mr. Sawtelle can look back with pride on the role he played in winning a square deal for the heroic lads in khaki, green and blue.

Motorists Must Buy Stamps

ONLY a few hours remain to obtain the compulsory motor vehicle tax stamps which must be affixed to all windshields by midnight.

The regulation must be obeyed, though it would be hard to imagine a more unpopular tax. It's particularly unpopular with the A card driver.

But refusal or failure to obtain the stamps is not the way to end this obviously unfair and unjust assessment.

The solution lies in Congress which has power to make the tax more honest and equitable and which most certainly should use the power.

CHICAGO, July 1 Back in the days when I was covering the 1944 Republican National Convention (T. E. Dewey, Prop.) I conceived an intense dislike for heavy people, particularly hearty-in-the-morning people.

I have always held that anyone who smiles, or even does anything more cheerful than grunt, before 10 a. m. is a party to be shunned. But now, after four days of mingling with delegates who go hale at daybreak, I have added an extra plank.

This calls for carrying a knife, or shiv, at all times—said shiv to be implanted in the first glad-before-breakfast fellow who comes within stabbing distance.

I do not mind confiding that this column is being written from the heart. There is nothing academic about it. I have suffered—and I haven't been enabled by it.

THE OTHER EVENING, Mr. Louis Bromfield, the author, took me aside and whispered that there were many educational things to see in Chicago after dark. He said it undoubtedly would be broadening to take them in.

I do not know how Mr. Bromfield got his information because he poses as strictly the rural type. Most of his conversation these days has to do with dwarf fruit trees and why doesn't the government give the poor farmer—meaning Mr. Bromfield—a chance to keep clear of the pawn broker?

His inside dope, however, turned out to be correct. Along with several other seekers after knowledge, including Dave Sentner and Frank Waldrop, I sallied forth on a mind-improving expedition.

We made several places, which, while highly-educational, would never be mistaken for Harvard, or even Yale. We were standing on a street corner debating where to go next when along came Mr. Bugs Baer, the great social worker.

Mr. Baer said he never goes to anything but parent-teacher banquets any more but that he had heard—in a strictly round-about way, mind you—of a place where something was coming off all the time.

"There is no waiting, or frittering away your time," he said. "They, hate a continual program."

I will not go into details concerning the place, except to say that it was quite exhausting. We were too tired to even put up more than token resistance when the bouncer heaved us at 5 a. m.

I had to be out at the stadium at 10 a. m. After straining three vertebrae shoving into a taxi, I slumped in a corner to die quietly.

The cab was going very rapidly through a narrow and crowded street. Suddenly the driver turned around and belted:

"Well, folksies, where in this beautiful land do you come from?"

Other occupants of the cab got as friendly as the driver. One by one they began to unload their life history. I remained glum. At last a big fellow sitting beside me slapped me on the knee and yelled:

"And you, chum—where do you come from?"

"Alcatraz!" I snarled.

SENATOR VANDENBERG of Michigan came dashing into the lobby on get-away day.

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways

I love thee to the level of every day's

Most quiet need, by sun and candlelight.

I love thee freely, as men strive for right;

I love thee purely, as they turn from praise;

I love thee with the passion put to use

In my old griefs, and with my childhood's faith.

I love thee with a love I seemed to lose

With my lost saints—I love thee with the breath

Smiles, tears, of all my life—and, if God choose

I shall but love thee better after death.

—ELIZABETH BARRETT BROWNING.

ABOVE is an excerpt from the lines spoken in the film, "The Purple Heart," and is quoted upon the insistent request of many subscribers. The rest of it will be found in Mrs. Browning's "Sonnets from the Portuguese," a copy of which is available at most any public library . . . Next to columnists and radio cut-ups, the members of what profession most regularly voice the corniest jokes? That is a question a New Yorker asks. I can't decide between dentists and college professors. The humor of judges is also usually a little on the corny side. Newspaper reporters are the witliest fellows. Priests usually have a good sense of humor. Hospital nurses have a talent for telling snappy stories. Quite a few lawyers are funny fellows. New York and San Francisco taxicab drivers are generally fellows of infinite jest. In the yesteryear, Broadway chorus girls were usually very witty; especially those connected with Mr. Ziegfeld's Follies. The modern chorus and floor show girl is rarely witty. Her chief interests seem to be her face, figure, future and gossip of the "What's the latest dirt?" type.

FROM NEW GUINEA: "The

"Life moves too rapidly," he remarked. "Do you know what I just saw?"

"Here we are, not even out of the place yet, and the Democrats are taking over. I just stopped off on the 20th floor. (Note—Stevens Hotel) and they were taking down all the Dewey and Bricker signs."

"But a new sign was going up. It read: 'Democratic Arrangements Committee!'"

AS YOU MAY perhaps have heard, the Stadium was a sweltering place during all convention sessions. In fact, the minute we moved into Chicago the weather went Democratic.

Delegates removed everything they could decently reach. But I thought a sign out in the lobby was going too far. It read:

"Check Clothes on the Meszanine."

I DO NOT KNOW whether this has any political significance, but Gov. Dewey has President Roosevelt topped in one notable respect. He uses a longer cigarette holder!

AT HIS FIRST press conference after being nominated, Dewey unwittingly caused disension between the reporters and photographers. This was remarkable in itself because they usually get on lovingly—they do!

The reporters felt the photographers were taking too long at their work and howled admonitions to hurry it up. Finally an over-heckled photographer yelled:

"Mind your own business!"

"To which the reporters chorused:

"We are. We want to interview the Governor before the election."

boys have appointed me to wish you to ask people back in the States to drink less liquor. If they do, perhaps as dog favors down here in New Guinea might be able to get a little drink of some good stuff now and then. At present all us get is some saki the Japs have left behind and some other similar brands of bottled nitroglycerine. Even the officers are doing without their monthly liquor ration. When that happens the situation is really grave."

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Where in the Bible are women compared with horses? A—Don't know of any passage where women in general are compared with horses, but in the "Song of Songs" is found the line: "I have compared thee, O my love, to a company of horses in Pharaoh's chariot."

Q—What Congressman, and by whom and when, was referred to as an "inarticulate rhetorician inebriated with the exuberance of his own verbosity?" A—Do not recall any Congressman being so described. However, Gladstone said of Disraeli: "He is a sophisticated rhetorician inebriated with the exuberance of his own verbosity and gifted with an egotistical imagination that ran at all times command an interminable and inconsistent verbiage of arguments to malign an opponent or glorify himself."

CHARM SCHOOL: A charm school for bus and streetcar conductors. That's what the Washington, D. C., capital transit company has established. Of course, this is exclusively for the female of the species. Is hoped by virtue of this course the Washington lady conductors will become a combination of the best features of a restaurant hostess, a department store floor walker, a voice-with-the-smile telephone girl and an office receptionist. The female conductors are enthusiastic about the course. Feminine conductors also strive to be smartly garbed. Male conductors incline to the reverse. You rarely see a neatly dressed male streetcar conductor. Most don't even have or have their uniforms pressed.

Hollywood

Boston American, July 1-15

HOLLYWOOD, July 1—Any deal Sam Wood and Gary Cooper might have had for independent productions is colder than a ration board's heart. Gary is not going to do "Jubal Troop" at Columbia for his old friend and director, and Sam is slinging under the collar and making no secret about it. Since the entire amalgamation was merely a handshake and a gentleman's agreement, there are no contracts broken and no legal suit involved. It's still too bad. Sam and Gary were not only close personal friends but they made many of their best pictures together as director and star, respectively. Two of them are "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and "Saratoga Trunk." Gary, it is understood, remains for another picture with Bill Goude's international company after completing "Casanova Q. Brown."

Gary Cooper

ERROL FLYNN keeps nice company in "San Antonio." The other two top roles in this saga of Texas go to Alexis Smith and Zachary Scott. There is plenty of enthusiasm on the Warner lot, clear up to Jack Warner, over Scott.

SIDELINES: It's no secret "The Picture of Dorian Gray" is way behind schedule. The other day Producer Al Lewin walked into the studio of the Albright artists and declared nervously the eccentric painters as they put a dab here and a dab there on one of the muchly needed canvases: "You'll have to hurry that up—hurry it up!" said the worried producer. "Don't worry brother," retorted the Albrights, "we're way ahead of you!" Lisette Verrea's screen test at Warners in which she did scenes from "Dark Eyes" and sang a number from "The Merry Widow" is a honey. Movie contract or not, she leaves Wednesday to open "Merry Widow" in San Francisco. . . . Tay Garnett has done such a top job of direction on "Mrs. Parkington" that he draws the worried Greer Garson picture, "Valley of Decision." . . . Speaking of directors, Charles Victor continues to draw bouquets from Columbia. He gets the untitled Irene Dunne-Charles Boyer film on the heels of "Cover Girl" and "Song to Remember." The latter was just completed.

COME AUG. 4. Betty Hutton headlines a new vaudeville act (not to be confused with a personal appearance in connection with one of her pictures), at the Paramount Theater in New York. To the pretty tinkle of $10,000 a week. There's a Cinderella angle knocking around here somewhere. For the last time Betty was in vaudeville her salary was $100.

HOLLYWOOD IN SHORTS: The beautiful bracelet Tommy Dorsey gave his bride, Pat Dane, is a "kiss and make up" present following a big tilt. Sgt. Bill Trimmy and Lois James (Claire's sister) are looking for a judge, or so they told pals at Slapsy Maxie's; Jackie Coogan, back in town, getting a hero's greeting at the Clover Club; personal nomination for one of the most beautiful women in Hollywood, Lorena Dancer, wife of radio executive, Danny Danner; Cole Porter has written a cowboy tune for "Hollywood Canteen" titled "Don't Fence Me In"; Groucho Marx's daughter, Miriam, is summering as a messenger girl at G-M-M; Betty-Jane Greer Vallee files her divorce suit from you-know-who on Monday; Zelma O'Neill rushed to Cedars of Lebanon for an operation; Bill Bendix tramps off for New York, his first trip in two years.

NEW YORK, July 1 Felix Jackson, the Hollywood producer, has slipped a diamond sparkler on Deanna Durbin's left hand. . . . Intimates aren't giving the Paulette Goddard-Burgess Meredith marriage six months. They stage their bouts in the most public places. . . . Frances Charles, an ex-Mrs. Victor Mature, has arrived in Manhattan for a fling at the stage. . . . Milton Berle has been picking so many winners at the race track that the Broadway horse fans flock to Lindy's in droves every night to wait for Berle and get his selections for the next day. . . . Mary Kirk Brown and her estranged husband, Joe White, have cancelled their Reno plans. . . . Gloria De Haven's torch is scorching the Hollywood drinkeries. The object: a male singing star.

"THE ARMY" is rushing over a crew of radio experts to set up a huge broadcasting studio for programs to be aired over Europe. Headquarters will be in England. . . . The inside of the Fred Waring turf with his sponsors is dynamic. . . . Lenore Lemmon, who went to have her nose remodeled, asked the surgeon to make it look "like Winston Churchill's." . . . Lory Jones, former vocalist with the Pancho and Ted Stryker bands, is a secret bride. The groom is an ex-prof at Arthur Murray's.

RAY SCHINDLER, the Oakes-

deMarigny case detective, is coast-bound to work on another important sleuthing case. . . . The Al Smiths (he's the Cleveland pitcher) are knitting tiny garments. . . . Bing Crosby will tout the Alaskan bases at his own expense. . . . Flash Macoco did not show at El Morocco the other night. The proper authorities have been notified. . . . The Hartford Retreat, Connecticut's "rest" place which housed some of the most famous people, will get a movie treatment.

JENNIFER HULL's two sons are piloting bombers in the Pacific. . . . Rudy Vallee hasn't given up hopes of reconciling with his most recent ex-wife. Still gets the weeps when you mention her name. . . . William Powell will head East for a visit with his Marine son, Bill, Jr., who is sailing at the Naval Hospital, St. Albans. . . . Pals believe ice skater Dorothy Lewis will waltz down the aisle with Lt. Sam Nickerson as soon as she finishes her current coast assignment.

Star Shine

By Sidney Skolsky

HOLLYWOOD, July 1—While we are watching them make pictures today, you and I are going to watch a kiss and inspect some glamour.

Marie MacDonald

The kiss took place on the set of "Winged Victory," which is the Army Air Corps picture—but it can be explained. Sgt. Robert Wiley, playing the role of a cadet, has just received his "wings" and his girl friend in the picture, watching the proceedings, has to rush over and kiss him. It just happens that the girl in who is playing the role of the girl friend is Mrs. Wiley.

They kiss. Director George Cukor isn't satisfied with the take. He walks over to where the sergeant and the girl are standing. "You're both too tense," Cukor says. "Relax a little. Get to know each other. Perhaps you should be introduced!"

"It's not necessary, Mr. Cukor," says Sgt. Wiley. "We're husband and wife."

"Then why so tense? Kiss each other as you always do. That isn't a difficult assignment, now is it?"

"But we're not used to doing it in front of witnesses," explains Mrs. Wiley.

Sgt. Wiley and the Mrs. Kiss as relaxed as they can, but it is still no take. The sound of an Army Air Forces plane flying over the studio has spoiled a take for the film about the Army Air Forces.

THE GLAMOUR you and I are going to inspect is named Marie MacDonald.

Marie is now playing a role in "Guest in the House," but she used to be the singer with Tommy Dorsey's band, and singing is what she came to Hollywood for, but she has yet to sing in a picture.

"Marie is a great favorite with the G. I.'s, and is a choice 'Pin-Up Girl.' Her claim to distinction is that she has never been 'The Girl I'd Most Like to Be Bombed With' or 'The Girl I'd Most Like to Submerge With,' (that's for the Navy). Marie is just a plain 'Pin-Up Girl' without a title.

Boston After Dark

IT SEEMS THE LADIES are having those small trunks which they call handbags made up now in "original models" . . . Lynn Logan, the New York beauty and whilom theatrical producer, was carrying one that dazzled the ringers of the Boston nightclubs. . . . It was a transparent affair, with compartments and sliding covers. . . . The various trinkets and gimmicks a lady needs when absent from her dressing-table—such as lipstick, a smidge of perfume, a compact, a key, handkerchiefs, cigarettes, memo book, pencil, money, a spare pair of hose, pins, matches, cigarette holder, and sundries—may be seen in the handbag model Miss Logan was carrying without benefit of a Red Cap. . . . Among the sundries were two pairs of sunglasses, we should have mentioned.

MISS LOGAN was squired by Hugh Fontaine. . . . This was an interesting duo because the New York columns were just carrying the "news" that Miss Logan and Robert L. Ripley were "an item." . . . Mrs. Mildred Lemmon of Peconic, N.Y., was with them. . . . Miss Logan is going to produce another play in the fall, she says. . . . Her last venture, a comedy called "Pie in the Sky," did not do enough business to remain open a week in New York. . . . But Lynn was not complaining. . . . She was satisfied that Elgin McGregor, her assistant producer and director, had performed a satisfactory job. . . . "The play wasn't there," Miss Logan summed it up.

BUT THINGS HAVE BEEN happening fast for the blonde ex-dancer who was the toast of England's nobility, including the late Duke of Kent, when she was dancing in London before the war. . . . Lynn's London solicitors had just informed her New York lawyers that a former husband, a colonel in the British infantry, had been very thoughtful of her. . . . The colonel and Miss Logan were divorced about five years ago. . . . But his will carried a bequest to Lynn of $250,000 (American), according to the report making the circuit of London and New York legal circles.

"IT CAN'T BE ALTOGETHER true, in the opinion of my New York lawyers, who warned me not to be too optimistic," said Miss Logan. . . . "The Duke only had about a million, and there are loads of brothers seven at least, as I understand." . . . But even a 10th of the alleged bequest, if that much comes true, will land the gorgeous Miss Logan a receptive and appreciative heiress.

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY The Mayfair's cocktail lounge will remain open while an re-working machine and a skating rink is being installed for a projected "made in Boston" show which is in preparation. . . . It will be called "Put Your Cares on Ice," a fair-weather link.

PERHAPS THREE weeks will be needed to convert The Mayfair's floor to an ice skating rink. . . . Meantime, Michael Redicne must cast about for a new staff and a new orchestra as well as come his jet-setting. . . . Maitre D' Paul and the Mayfair's captains have been hired by Jack Larkin, who is opening a new Red Coach Grill in Middleboro. . . . And the Copley Plaza's Oval Room, where business has been pitiful for the past two weeks, has engaged Maestro Harry Green and his good dance band.

Beauty

IF YOU'D LIKE TO SHINE in the sunshine... give the brush-off to flabby musculature... and become a fetching bathing beauty in three weeks. Ida Jean Kain sounds some grand advice in her exercise routine for shaping your figure to ship-shape attractiveness...

...of the kind that Dorothy Lamour, Paramount's popular star, can so proudly boast.

Become Bathing Beauty in 3 Weeks

By IDA JEAN KAIN

THERE'S A NEW SOS signal. Instead of the dot-dash-dot code, it goes "bump-sunk-bump" and it originated with the bathing gals before they hit the water. They want their figures saved. With the new high tide bathing suits, they're writing in and drawing diagrams of the shape they're in, mostly hip bumps and thigh hollows.

What's wrong is flabby musculature. You can do some preliminary circulation rousing when you take your shower. Use a bath brush, well soaped, in a flank attack. Scrub the humps briskly, but not too long. A little a day does it. After drying off, pummel the fatty pads like this: Clench your fists and pummel up and down the thighline fairly vigorously. Follow up with a bit of exercise of a special order.

Position: This is a little difficult to describe, but the idea is to bring your weight to bear on the fat pad on the side of the thigh. You get down on the floor with the left leg straight down, right foot on floor with knee flexed to use as a hoist, and leaning back to rest weight on left forearm and right hand in back.

Movement: Up and down on the fat pad. Bump, bump, bump! Continue for 20 bumps then rest and get into same complicated position on other side.

Position: Sitting on floor and leaning slightly backward, weight resting on heaviest part of hips, legs straight down and together. Arms should be slightly back at sides and palms on floor.

Movement: Using arms as hoists, raise hips off floor a few inches, then lower smartly to floor. Continue spanking for 20 counts. Then you can start the spanking with hips turned to side and continue spanking to the other side.

The last exercise tones the inner and outer thigh muscles so it slims the hips.

Position: Lying on right side on floor, head pillowed on folded right arm, left hand braced on floor in front of chest, legs stretched straight down, with left on top.

Movement: Circle top leg widely from the hip joint. Circle six times, rest, repeat another six times. Then roll over and perform with other leg. Later on you can make 25 circles with each leg.

With these three exercises, maybe you can be a bathing beauty in three weeks! If you want some illustrated exercises, send for "Exercise for Lovely Thighs." Just enclose large stamped return envelope. Copyright, 1941, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Menu for Porch Picnic

By MARTHA LEE

A PICNIC-ON-THE-PORCH is just the thing for the 4th of July. In fact, there will be many days during the summer when eating outdoors will have more appeal than eating indoors. It's an ideal way to entertain, too. No matter how simple the menu, it will take on a festive air if given the outdoor background.

Cold sliced meat, a gelatin salad of some sort, a hot dish—which may be corn-on-the-cob, fresh when in season, or canned right now, or hot muffins, or a delicious hot soup, berries and cream ice cream, iced or hot coffee or tea, all these are suggestions around which an attractive porch-picnic meal may be planned.

Here is a sample menu—PORCH-PICNIC MENU

India Relish Luncheon Plate
Corn-on-the-Cob
Bread and Butter
Berries and Cream

Apéritif Jelly Iced Coffee

INDIA RELISH LUNCHEON PLATE

1 pkg. lemon-flavored gelatin
1 pt. hot water, 1 tsp. salt
1½ cups finely chopped cabbage

2 cups hot water

Dissolve gelatin in hot water; add 1½ tsp. salt. Chill. Add 1½ tsp. salt to cabbage. When gelatin is slightly thickened, fold in cabbage and India relish. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm. Makes 8 molds.

Prepare luncheon plate of thin slices of assorted cold cuts, sliced tomatoes and lettuce and gelatin mold.

HOT MUFFINS
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour,

1 tsp. baking powder
1½ tsp. salt 2 tbsp. sugar
1 egg, well beaten 1 cup milk
½ tsp. shortening or solid oil
Sift together all the dry ingredients. Combine remaining ingredients. Add all at once to

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Friday—I took my first bicycle ride of the season yesterday morning, through the woods to the big house, and found the mosquitoes very active and unpleasant companions. The woods looking very beautiful, however, and are a joy to go through.

By 6:30 I had picked up Miss Marion Dickerman and her mother, and my sister-in-law, Mrs. J. E. Roosevelt, and went to the Methodist church in the village for the Democratic Women's Club meeting, at which Miss Dickerman spoke. She took the Republican convention as her topic and I thought she gave the women present some very good material with which to work.

At the dinner I had a chance to talk to many of the women who have boys in far-away places. One of them told me that her boy is a Marine and has been in the Pacific for nearly two years.

These long stretches of duty without any fixed rotation policy give people so little to which they can look forward.

I hope that before long it will be possible to tell men more definitely that at the end of certain periods of service in far distant places they may be able to get home for a given length of time.

NOW FOR A second item. Mrs. Arthur Terry asks me to please add to what I said the other day about her work.

Everybody getting eye-glasses through her charity gets an examination by a competent eye man, and new lenses are provided. No money is spent on overhead, so this can be done out of what is paid for the old gold. Copyright, 1941, United Features Synd., Inc.

flour mixture, stirring, not beating, quickly and vigorously until just mixed and of a lumpy appearance, but no longer. Over-stirring causes coarse-textured muffins. Fill greased or oiled muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in a hot oven of 425 deg. F. about 25 minutes. Makes 14 2½-inch muffins. (2½ cups sifted cake flour may be substituted for the all-purpose flour.)

Don't forget that excellent muffins can be made quickly and easily from packaged hot muffin mixes, which require only the addition of water. They are grand time and labor-savers at any time, but especially during hot weather.

FRENCH ONION SOUP

½ cup butter
6 medium-sized onions, sliced
1 qt. boiling water
5 bouillon cubes
6 slices French bread, toasted
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Melt butter in large saucepan. Add onions and cook 10 minutes.

Add boiling water in which bouillon cubes have been dissolved, cover, and cook over low heat until onions are tender. Pour soup in earthenware soup dish, place toast on top, and sprinkle with cheese. Bake in moderately hot oven until cheese melts. (425 deg. F.) Makes 6 servings.

CHICKEN AND MUSHROOM SOUP

1 1½ qt. can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 1½ qt. can condensed chicken soup
1 can of water (use soup can as measure)

Empty mushroom soup and water into a saucepan and stir well. Add chicken soup, stirring constantly. Heat and serve. Makes 1 to 5 servings.

ICED COFFEE

Make coffee by any of your favorite methods, allowing 4 level or 2 rounded tablespoons coffee for each measuring cup (8-ounce) water. As soon as coffee has brewed, pour into glasses filled with cracked ice or ice cubes.

Revere JVA Boosts Roster

With nearly 140 members now enrolled, the "MacArthur Quaker Wing" Corps of the Junior Victory Army in Revere, sponsored by Mrs. Lila O. Annis, is steadily expanding its war duties on the home front and increasing its personnel.
The corps is second in size only to the "Defense and Aviation Corps," made up of 222 pupils and graduates of the Oliver Wendell Holmes School, Dorchester, and sponsored by Miss Esther Larson, geography teacher.
A new paper collection station has been set up at Sharley ave. and Beach st., Revere.

Puzzle Solution

Plans for a dance on the evening of July 4 are under way. Mrs. Annis says, and a guest of honor is expected to be PFC Arthur Land-fear, of Somerville, a veteran of New Guinea fighting.
To join the JVA, send your name, age and full address to Junior Victory Army, Box 228, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well-wrapped in your letter.
Read the next JVA story in Sunday's Advertiser.

Red Sox Will Miss Johnson and Tabor

word came up to the press that Jimmy Bucher would play third. . . . Later, we learned that "Rawhide" was benched because of a bad wrist, which has been troubling him for some time. . . . And, to add to Cronin's troubles, George "Pinky" Woods couldn't "sun-form" due to a severe case of sunburn. . . .

Clem Haussmann was to have pitched for the Red Sox yesterday. . . . But, the "Skipper" likes to cross up his pal Jimmy Dykes, so he took the blanket off Tom Judd. . . . Jimmy Bucher and Jimmy Webb must have been "roomies" somewhere along the line. . . . In the second frame, the Red Sox third sacker had two chances to retire the White Sox shortstop on foul flies, but due to the proximity of the axes, the ball got away from him on both occasions. . . . But, no damage resulted for Webb but a humped back liner to "Skinner" Newsome, who doubled up Ed Carnett to retire the side.

When Judd retired with none out and three and two on Bill Juch in the third, Umpire Rommel was responsible for the game being held up by protesting that Yank Terry didn't come up from the bull pen when he called him. Cronin jumped all over Rommel and when Hal Weafer ordered Terry to pitch, the "Skipper" yelled "Warm up to me." . . . Which Terry did and then slipped a strike over on Dietrich.

There was less hustle in last night's game than in any of the three previous twilight tilts. It required 55 minutes to play the first three innings.

Bill Dietrich walked from the mound to the clubhouse runway when George Metkovich fled to "Joe" Tucker for the final out in the third. . . . Dietrich had won six to a row when the Red Sox went to work on him yesterday. . . . With the White Sox eight runs behind, and nobody out, "Mule" Haas, the third base coach, sent Tucker in on Eddie Carnett's single to center. . . . Tucker was thrown out by George Metkovich by the proverbial mile.

In the fourth, the Pale Hose made three hits and Terry walked Vince Castino but they didn't score. . . . That's second division baseball in a Class D league. . . . Buck Ross tried to take up the slack when Dietrich departed. . . . On his last relief job, Ross was belted from stem to stern by the St. Louis Browns.

Looks Soft for Pancho Segura

EVANSTON, Ill., July 1 (AP)—One of Notre Dame's Fighting Irish had a fighting chance—but little more to shake down the thunder from the sky today in the finals of the N. C. A. A. tennis tournament by dethroning Francisco (Pancho) Segura, the University of Miami's scintillating defending champion.

Final obstacle in what has been something of a maypole dance by the devastating segura of his second straight singles title was Notre Dame's captain and "lend-lease" star, Charles Samson of Wichita, Kan.

Also climaxing a week of racket-swinging on Northwestern University's courts, the National Collegiate Doubles championship will be settled today with the University of Texas defending titlist John Hickman and Felix Kelley, encountering Nick Buzolic, six foot, seven-inch basketball center, and Gary Ruby of Pepperdine College (Los Angeles).

Judging by the manner top-seeded Segura polished off his four victims to date, including his semifinal conquest yesterday of Georgia Tech's Frank Willett, 6-2, 6-1, 6-4, the swarthy Ecuador star should win as he pleases from Samson. However, the Irish captain, who starred at Ohio State before he was shifted to Notre Dame's V-12 unit, gained some giant-killing stature when he spilled third-seeded Harry Likas of Gonzaga in their semi-final match Thursday.

Only other action yesterday in addition to Segura's drubbing of Willett was the semi-final doubles triumph by Hickman and Kelley over Samson and Jerry Evert of Notre Dame, 7-5, 6-2, 6-3. Buzolic and Ruby gained the finals Thursday by eliminating Dick Warner and Bob Lewis of Utah.

By gaining the finals, Samson clinched at least a tie by Notre Dame for California's undefended team title. The losing finalist is awarded two points which with the single point Notre Dame acquired by reaching the doubles semi-finals assured the Irish a final total of three points, as many as Segura can win for Miami, or either of the two-man finalists can capture by title triumphs.

Stan Musial Still Bombards Pitchers

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Stan Musial, the defending champion from Donora, Pa., stepped back into the National batting lead today by a margin of .0006 over Brooklyn's Dixie Walker, his most persistent challenger.

Behind Musial's booming bat the Cardinals from St. Louis resumed their winning ways by thumping the Phils, 8-4, after losing two games and a "suspended" fray in the last three days. Pittsburgh clung tight to second place by splitting a pair with New York, winning 9-8 after dropping the first to the Giants 7-5, Chicago's Les Fleming blanked Brooklyn, 2-0 with three blows and Bucky Walters hung up win No. 13 by shading Boston, 3-2, in a night game.

In night games Milo Candini outpitched Johnny Gorsica to give Washington a 4-2 nod over Detroit and Mickey Rocco broke up a 4-2-inning game in Philadelphia with a single giving Cleveland a 5-4 victory.

MUSIAL ON LOOSE

Musial clubbed two doubles and a single, driving in two Cardinals runs to boost his average to .378, as compared to Walker's .370. It was the first time since early May that Walker, who had a 78-point margin six weeks ago, had dropped out of first place after weeks at a .400 pace. Morton Cooper was credited with the win over Al Getzheuser.

Ed Head suffered his first defeat after four wins as Andy Parks homered with Bill Nicholson on in the last of the ninth to break up a 0-0 duel at Chicago. Ace Adams won and lost for New York, grabbing the first game over Rip Sewell in a relief role and bowing out to Art Cucurullo when he failed as a fireman in the finale.

Vernon "Junior" Stephens with a homer and two singles was the big gun as the Browns woke up to shake the Yanks and beat Joe Page behind Al Hollingsworth's tight hurling with five double plays playing the way.

In Philadelphia Joe Heving, who pitched from the ninth on, got credit for the win when Rocco singled in the 12th and reliever Joe Berry took the loss.
